David Sherman, Presenter

Dave Sherman is the principal of South Park Elementary School in Deerfield School District 109. This is his fifth year as principal of South Park. Before moving to Deerfield, he was the principal of Jackson Elementary School in Elmhurst for nine years. Mr. Sherman also has worked as a middle school assistant principal and was a teacher of grades 2, 5, 6, and 7. He has been blogging for over three years and he writes two different blogs. One is designed for his school community and the other is designed to share his thoughts on education, parenting, sports and other interests. Dave also writes a monthly post on LeaderTalk, which is an educational weekly blog. Mr. Sherman has been working with School District 109 teachers to embed technology into their planning and instruction.

Learning in the Digital Age

Our students are coming to school with knowledge and skills that are new and unexplored for many teachers and administrators, we must be the leaders and role models for the uses of new and innovative Web 2.0 tools such as blogging, RSS, Wikis, Skype, and Podcasting. Dave Sherman, Principal of South Park

Elementary School in Deerfield, Illinois, is a leader in the use of current and emerging technologies which enhance the instructional program, communicate with the community, and connect students and staff with the entire world.

In this hands-on workshop, participants will learn about the possibilities Web 2.0 tools offer for instruction and professional development, they will create a new blog and learn to use it for communication and instruction, and learn how RSS will revolutionize their own professional development. Finally, participants will learn to work with teachers to bring new and innovative technologies into their classrooms.

Administrators may receive Administrators Academy Credit (Academy 300)

Teachers may receive six CPDU Credits!
