EMPOWERING AUTHENTIC APPROACHES TO SCHOOL-BASED CHANGE

8 ARCHETYPES FOR DRIVING CHANGE IN THE CLASSROOM

Change has been upon us for quite some time and now more than ever. Educators, leaders, and schools are being asked to adjust to rapid changes in unprecedented ways. Yet at the heart of this urgency are talented people with something to offer and a desire to rise to the occasion, yet unfortunately may not always find pathways for doing so. If we lean into each individual's genius, it is possible to build those pathways toward sustainable changes for the system, but most importantly, for the young people we serve. Through an "archetypal approach" to organizational change, we can get there faster and more thoughtfully. By applying 8 change archetypes to our approaches for leading change, schools, districts, and organizations can tap into the latent talent within them, to not only collaborate toward a better future, but also support each individual's well-being.

You will Learn about the 8 Archetypes and How they Drive Change:

- Diplomats who build relationships and value fairness and integrity.
- Champions who are passionate about a cause and advocate for people and ideals.
- Creatives who approach things through novelty and ingenuity.
- Storytellers who are thoughtful, attentive to details, and clear communicators.
- Inventors who are forward thinkers who operate through free experimentation.
- Sages who are perceptive, insightful, and persuasive.
- Investigators who have an analytical curiosity, ask probing questions, and conduct thorough research.
- Guardians who have compassion for and are drawn to nurture and protect others.

Ashley Lamb-Sinclair, the 2016 Kentucky Teacher of the Year, is an award-winning educator, author, speaker, and consummate coalition-builder whose passion is bringing people together around a cause. After 14+ years as a National Board Certified classroom educator, Ashley founded and spearheaded an edtech platform called Curio Learning and has contributed to several publications including The Atlantic and the Washington Post, and is an Oxford and Fulbright Scholar. She currently serves as a National Geographic Explorer stewarding the 2892 Miles to Go Geographic Walk for Justice alongside a collective of community storytellers and social justice leaders across the globe. A deep belief that experiential education is a catalyst for positive change drives all that Ashley does.
