

INTERMEDIATE NGSS TRAINING: BECOMING A CRITICAL CONSUMER OF NGSS-ALIGNED RESOURCES

FEATURING JEFF SPENCER

3 locations around Illinois
October 16 - Gateway Center, Collinsville
January 22 - NIU Naperville
January 23 - ISU Alumni Center, Normal
9:00 am-3:00 pm

Registration Includes Breakfast, Parking, Materials &
5 Professional Development Hours. Lunch is on your own.

Participants will build on material learned in the 'Demystifying the NGSS' professional learning series. This session will include a model activity to ground discussion on evaluating resources based on a nationally recognized rubric to determine alignment with the NGSS. Attendees will establish a framework for assessing and becoming critical consumers of science resources to help meet the vision of the NGSS.

In this workshop, participants will:

- Be introduced to a rubric that considers NGSS alignment
- Evaluate a model activity using the rubric
- Understand if teaching or curricula are aligned to the current standards.
- Consider ways to shift your current teaching to better align with the NGSS

Meet Jeff Spencer

As a classroom teacher, Jeff was interested in learning about making science engaging, relevant, and accessible for all students. He was a high school science teacher in Aurora, Colorado during the adoption of the NGSS and served in many ways to design NGSS-aligned activities, train and support teachers in using NGSS principles in their classrooms, and consider how science can relate to issues in students' everyday lives.
