How to Create a Dream–To–Do School Culture Kent Julian

Most educational leaders have big goals for their schools or districts. But often, instead of achieving these dreams, they get stuck in dreamland. Each year the same goals get set, and each year the same goals go unmet. Yet, the truth is, any team can move from DREAM to DO if leadership cultivates the right environment. That’s because Direction Determines Destiny! In other words, the environment you create determines the results you produce. To cultivate a DREAM-to-DO school or district, educational leaders must become DREAM-to-DO leaders.

In this keynote, you’ll discover how to move yourself and your team from DREAM to DO by:
- Tapping into the "BIG is Little and Little is BIG" strategy to make strategic adjustments that lead to BIG results
- Keeping the #1 goal of education top of mind
- Learning how to move yourself and your team from a disempowering E=O culture to the always-empowering E+R=O culture
- Cultivating a learning environment that champions personal responsibility and achievement

This fun and engaging team-building keynote is guaranteed to put smiles on participants’ faces while they learn how to:
- Identify the 4 signature moves (i.e. personality styles)
- Identify their own best move(s) so they can play to their strengths
- Ask 2 simple questions to quickly identify other people's signature moves
- Encourage and build others up in their signature moves

Using Protocols to Guide Professional Learning Conversations

Admin. Academy #1544 Don Kachur

The focus of this administrator academy is on learning to use protocols to guide professional conversations, whether they occur at grade level meetings, department meetings, professional learning community (PLC) meetings, or any type of interactions among a group meeting of educators. The structure of protocols includes steps to be followed in group conversations, the time allotted for each step, and the role different people in the group play (typically a facilitator, a presenter, and participants) in the conversations. In this session, participants will learn about the value and types of protocols and how to design various protocols for different types of professional learning conversations.
