

Keepin' It Real: The Return of Remote Learning with Brandy Hempen

Join real classroom teacher Dr. Brandy Hempen in this asynchronous workshop filled with ideas on how to better prepare yourself and your students for the potential return of remote learning this fall. After a quick review of the new state guidelines and recommendations, you will engage in many hands-on activities focusing on the following:

- Parental access and support from home
- Meeting the social/emotional needs of students remotely
- Creating standards-based activities remotely
- Differentiating instruction remotely
- Creating meaningful assessments remotely
- Using incentives for work completion
- Providing meaningful feedback to students
- Grading options offered by the state

This workshop will include templates for you to take and use directly in your classroom helping to make the transitioning process go much more smoothly when and if that time comes. Actual week-long units and lesson plans filled with instructional videos, activities, hooks and closings along with behind-the scenes how-to's will be included! Leave this "already made-you take" workshop feeling more confident in your ability to teach in the remote setting.

Choose your grade level:

Primary— K-2

Elementary—3-5 (Self-contained classrooms)

Junior high— 6-8 (Departmentalized classrooms)
