

New Teacher Workshop Series

Live on Zoom and available asynchronously

These workshops will focus on the new teacher's ability to make connections to strengthen relationships. Expertise in classroom management, organization, and analyzing data will be addressed. Recognizing the challenges that face teachers who have learned and taught in a virtual world, we will explore the realities that a different set of skills are necessary for returning to the classroom. Further, the pressures of the first years in teaching will also be addressed as educators engage in additional mini-sessions.

NEW TEACHER WORKSHOP SERIES

Dr. Judy Kmak is a retired principal who implemented new teacher orientation programs in multiple school districts and has coached hundreds of as an administrator over the years. Throughout her career she focused on student engagement, professional collaboration, and community partnerships. Judy continues to look for ways to contribute to the field of education and supervises student teachers to support them as they build their teaching skills. She understands the importance of new beginnings and building relationships and has shared her knowledge at the IL ASCD Social-Emotional Learning Summits. It is through these many experiences that Dr. Kmak is able to customize staff development to meet the needs of educators in the course of their careers.
